28th Day – 6th Month – 5998s.c.

Important Message About 5998s.c. Projected Calendar CST - CENTRAL STANDARD TIME Zone

For those who follow our facebook pages, you may have seen the post concerning this yesterday, 6-27-5998sc (roman sept-28-16). We wanted to send out a newsletter so those who haven't seen the facebook post, would also receive this. And we also wanted to add a few thing too.

Last year when we projecting the calendar calculations for this year, 5998s.c. We found that the end of this the 6th month, due to "official" moon conjunction times, we saw that it was going to be Very Close. As the "official" conjunction time happens only minutes After Sunset. We made a note of this on the projected calendar with a  under the conjunction times, however we didn't have room to explain further on the calendar, although we did mention it in a newsletter at that time.

When we looked at it last year, they were showing the moon at sunrise on the 29th day Shabbat, would still be a little over 3% in size, which is about the smallest moon that you can see with the naked eye due to its proximity to the sun at that point in the month. Which would have meant that there would have been a 30th day.

However, this week, we have been taking a second look at this, and found it has seemingly changed. According to a free program called Stellarium which we have used for some years and have found to be pretty accurate, it shows that the moon will only be point .2% or Two Tents of 1%. Which is Far too small to ever be seen by the naked eye.

Stellarium also shows that the Moon will actually go completely Dark, at 0% illumination, at approximately 3pm CST, which is still approximately 4 hours before sunset (at least it is here).

Which means that, By Projections there will be NO 30th Day in this the 6th Month. What that means is that as soon as the 29th Day Shabbat Ends, the Rosh Chodesh, the 1st day of the 7th Month, Begins. This also changes the 7th month in the fact, that it will now have a 30th day, where as previous projections had it only at 29 days. The rest of the year is unchanged.

So, What do we do...

Those here in the US, if the above projections is correct, it would be impossible to see the moon on the 29th Day, the last Shabbat of the month, at sunrise.

For those in other nations overseas, your results may vary, but it looks as if at least some locations may have a 30th day, IF the calculated moon phase information is correct...

Which again just reinforces the reason for the need actually going out and reading the moon in the morning approxamently 20 to 30 minutes before sunrise for ourselves on the 28th and 29th Days.

If there is no moon visible in the morning before sunrise on the 29th Day, then at sunset that evening will begin Rosh Chodesh, the 1st Day of the 7th Month, which is also Yom Teruah/Day of Trumpets.

Anyway, we just wanted to bring this calendar issue to everyone's attention, and give notice of the changed projections.

We have updated the CST calendar with these new projections, and have re-published it on our main website YHRIM.com.
